

Utilisation of walnut, robinia and ash on the basis of Hungarian experiences

Nemeth, R.,

University of West Hungary, H-9400 Sopron, Ady E. u. 5.

nemethr@fmk.nyme.hu

Walnut, robinia and ash provide valuable timber. The quality of the harvested timber is related to forest management (soil conditions, thinning operations, rotation time etc...).

The presentation discusses the microscopic and macroscopic characteristics, the most important physical and mechanical properties, the assortments, the workability and utilisation of these three wood species.